JOINT NEWS RELEASE – January 28, 2015

Spirit Communications announces Web.Com Tour Sponsorship

COLUMBIA, S.C. (January 28, 2015) – Spirit Communications and The Legacy Agency announced a sponsorship deal with PGA Web.com Tour player Kelvin Day. Day, originally from London, England and played collegiality at Charleston Southern University, now resides in Charlotte N.C.

Day will compete in all 25 of the Web.com Tour events including 5 International and 3 in the Carolinas where he was a four-year standout at CSU, finishing 21st at the NCAA Regional in his senior season.

Day was 44th on the PGA Tour Canada last season with two top 10 finishes. He also had a win on the Adams Tour.

"I am so excited about my partnership with Spirit Communications" said Day. "They are a great company and have ties to where I went to school and now where I live. As I grow in my career and reach the PGA TOUR, Spirit will be with me every step of the way and that was key to me when agreeing to wear their logo."

Kevin Canning, Principle of the Legacy Agency added "As an agent, I am constantly trying to find companies to partner with my clients. In Kelvin I have an incredibly talented golfer who wanted to partner with a firm that was based where he lives, can grow with him and is a leader in its industry. We found all of these with Spirit Communications. Kelvin is excited to serve as a brand ambassador for Spirit and I know Spirit is going to use all of its resources to get the most return out of this relationship. Also, The Legacy Agency is proud to be a customer of Spirit and couldn't be happier with the services they provide our business."
